Wood effect vinyl flooring is the very latest generation of vinyl that has very little in common with its original concept. It's a rigid carrier based on limestone, combined with an innovative top layer that faithfully reproduces the imperfections of wood. Thanks to its ingenious structure, you can hardly tell the difference between wood effect vinyl flooring and real wood flooring.

A floor with herringbone is chic and elegant, a classic look that's back in fashion and here to stay. A herringbone floor is a seamless match of contemporary design and architecture. If you are looking for an avant-garde atmosphere in your interior without spending a fortune – now you can, without spending a fortune.

FEATURES

- Embossed in Register finish (where you see a knot in the surface, you feel exactly that knot with your fingers)
- No need for screed or DPM floor prep assuming the sub floor is flat level & dry
- Product is SPC (Stone, plastic composite)
- 70% limestone for maximum stability
- Far superior to LVT click
- 0.55mm top layer which qualifies the product for:
- 35 year Domestic Guarantee
- 25 year commercial Guarantee
- Perfect for underfloor heating
- Very stable in hot conditions (such as south facing rooms with big glass windows)
- A very high number of individual boards, to prevent repetition on installation

I have just bought the herringbone wood effect vinyl from Eaton Square. They were so helpful in sending out samples and keeping me informed of delivery days (and fitted in with when I was going to be at home). We laid the flooring ourselves and they were always at the end of the phone when we made a mistake - which we did. The flooring is great quality and will definitely withstand Airbnb renters. Would definitely recommend.
